THE EVENING STAR.

SATURDAY February 22, 1879.

CONGRESSIONAL. Conclusion of Vesterday's Proceedings. SENATE—After our report closed— Mr. McPherson called up the Senate bill to miend certain provisions of the Revised Statutes relating to the transportation of animals On motion of Mr. Davis, (Ill.,) the bill was amended so as to provide that the animals shall not be kept in the cars more than 45 hours, instead of 60, although they may be watered and fed en route.

Mr. McPherson submitted an amendment authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint an agent at each of the following places: Pertland, Mc.; Boston, New York, Philadelphia. Baltimore, Norfolk, New Orleans and Galveston. such agent to inspect all live animals designed for exportation, and certify as to their healthy condition; adopted. The bill was read a third time and passed.

The Senate then proceeded with the consideration of the army appropriation bill, and a number of amendments proposed by the committee on appropriations were agreed to. The clause authorizing railroad companies to transmit telegrams over their lines for the government and for the general public, at rates to be fixed by the government, according to the pro-visions of title 65 of the Revised Statutes, was passed just as it came from the House. No amendment was made, either by the Senate committee or in the senate. The clause was not even discussed.

The sections referring to the reorganization of the army having been reached. Mr. Blatne sald the committee on appropriations had reported in favor of striking out these sections, on the ground that there was not time in the few re maining days of the session to go into the complicated question of army reorganization. The committee had directed him to suggest to the Senate that the question of army reorganization be postponed until the next session Fending discussion Mr. Edmunds, from the library committee, in accordance with instructions of the Senate, reported a bill providing for the appointment of a commission to consider the subject of enlarging the Capitol so as to provide increased accommodations for the library and the two houses of Congress. Mr. Voorbees reported a bill granting a pension of $50 a month to the widow of the late Rear Admiral Goldsborough. Mr. Ferry, at 4:15 p. m., called up the House resolution in memory of the late Gen. Alpheus S. Williams, a member of the House from Michigan. Appropriate remarks upon the life and character of the deceased were made by Messrs.

Ferry, Dawes, Cockrell, Plumb and Maxey Suitable resolutions were adopted, and at 5: p. m. the Senate, as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, adjourned. HOUSE.-After our report closed-The House being in committee of the whole on the private calendar, considering the bill for the relief of John T. Armstrong, of Virginia, on account of wharf property occupied by the United States army in Alexandria during the war, Mr. Hunton stated that the loyalty of the claimant had been fully proved, and the only question was whether Congress was going to pay any claim of that character. The vote on the present case would be a decisive one as to cases of the same character. After considera-ble debate Mr. White moved to strike out the enacting clause of the bill, and it was agreed to without division. The next bill reached was one to pay A. A. H. Richards, of Va., $6,000 for supplies furnished the army during the war. The enacting clause of this bill was also stricken out by a vote of 101 to 48. Several other war claims shared the same The only bill agreed to by the committee was one for the relief of Gibbes & Co., Charleston, S.

C. The committee then rose. Gen. Granger's Widow's Divorce Smit. SECUEL TO THE BLAIR COURT MARTIAL.

On the day when the trial of Captain Blair was enced suddenly by a confession of guilt, it was known that the lawyers who had defended him, and who had advised him to plead guilty to the charges of bigamy and forgery, had been retained by his second wife to begin an action against him to annul his marriage with her. It was understood, also, that Captain Blair, who seemed to have broken down under the weight of evidence against him, conceded that Mrs. Granger ought to be separated from him, and had declared his intention not to oppose the action. The complaint of Mrs. Granger was prepared yesterday by Elliott F. Shep-ard, with whom General M. T. McMahon is associated in the case. It is short but pointed. It sets forth the facts of her marriage with Captain Blatr in Kentucky, and of his previous and existing marriage with Ann Baillie in Scotland. Mrs. Granger declares that she first learned of Captain Blair's marriage with Ann Baillie at the time of the court-martial proceedings, and that she has not conabited with him since. She prays that her marriage with him may be declared void as ab initio. In view of Captain Blair's determination not to oppose the action, it is expected that the proceedings in court will be short. Captain Blair still remains a prisoner at Fort Columbus, Governor's Island, awaiting the sentence of the court-martial. - [N. F. Tribune, 21st.

THREE SISTERS MARRIED AT ONE TIME, AND THREE BRIDAL PARTIES ON A TOUR .- A telegram from Greene, N. Y., February 19, Says: The marriage of three sisters at one time and in the same church made a sensation in society circles in this village and the neighborhood last evening. Two of the bridegrooms were clergy-men. The triple ceremonies were performed in the Congregational Church in the presence of a large number of guests, a number of whom were New Yorkers, and parties came from the country for miles around to witness the scene brides and bridegrooms were Miss Mary H. Grant and the Rev. Smith T. Ford, pastor of the Baptist Church in Greene; Miss Flora R. Grant and Mr. H. H. Scott, a New York shoe merchant, and Miss Jennie L. Grant and the Rev. Wm. N. Pitchia of the L. Grant and the Rev. Wm. N. Ritchie, of the 44th-street Presbyterian Church, New York. The three sisters, standing together at the altar in their bridal robes, made a striking picture. After the wed-dings there was a brilliant reception, and then the three bridal parties started together for the east on an extended tour.

MR. BEECHER ON RUM DRINKING .- At a temperance meeting in Plymouth church last night Mr. Beecher said that the question of superstimulation was one which affected the man. the household, the neighborhood, the state, the whole country. The whole force of religion and society's full moral force must be exerted against an evil so vast that it fills our poor-houses, hospitals and jails. "We will not let a man carry dynamite through the streets," he said, "and rum-drinking is an evil which in its volume, vastness and misery overtops all other forms. It is the very devil among devils. It is a notorious fact that the existing laws in regard to the liquor traffic are shamefully broken, snubbed and trodden under foot. Every good citizen should see that they are enforced "-[N. Y. AN ALPINE AVALANCHE. - There was a tremendous Alpine avalanche on the St. Gethard route on Jan. 24. The long procession of sledges started from the hospice at the summit of the pass soon after 4 o'clock, and descended toward Airolo. At the first great bend in the road. not far from the little refuge house known as San Guiseppe, the two leaders of the caravan noticed with alarm that a huge snow mass was breaking loose from the top of the mountain. himediately the cry, "Backwards!" was raised. Every one sprang in an instant from the sledges, and rushed up the road as fast as possible. The avalanche thundered down, and horses and carriages were buried in a moment under the tremendous heap of snow. Fortunately no one of the company lost presence of mind, but all returned to the buried horses and sledges, and began the work of excavation with hearty good will. All the horses except two were dug out alive. The passengers were too much worn out and excited to continue their journey, so the horses were fastened to the sledges, and the whole party reascended and spent the night in the St Gothard Hospice, where they amused themselves with telegraphing the news of their wonderful escape to

THE LIME KILN CLUB INVESTIGATION .example of the Lime Kiln Club as an investigatoris worth circulating: "Jamestown Smith arose to a question of privilege and said that rumors were alloat to the effect that the janitor was employing his son to help him around the ball and paying him out of the club funds. Mr. Smith moved for an investigation. 'De janitor will please step to de front,' said the President, 'dis club investigates on de spot.'

'Gem'len,' began the janitor, as he limped out, I has heard de charges an' am ready for trial. I has been charged wid workin' my son into a fat job. Whar's de fatness? Whar's de son? Way back in de y'ar forty-nine, when me an' de ole woman was livin' on de Rapidan, we had a son bo'n to us, but arter he growed up big 'nuff to let de hot stove-poker alone, he died. Dat's de only son I ever had. If Ize got anoder aroun' heah I'd be mighty glad to shuk hands wid him.' "A brief investigation disclosed the fact that

Mr. Smith was the victim of a put-up job, and he was fined one dollar for the benefit of the library fund."-[Free Press. THE ZODIACAL LIGHT AND ITS NATURE.-The Boston Transcript says of the zodiacal light: "It may be looked for in the west an hour after sundown, where it may be seen extending up about thirty degrees, as an elliptical glow, bent slightly from the horizon toward the south, reaching sometimes as high as the Pleiades. The light is about as bright as that of the Milky Way, and must be searched for by the unac-customed eye; the stars are visible through it. Wherever situated, it must be reflected sun-light, and this, whether it be considered, with Kepler and Cassini, a solar emanation, or a ring of matter around the earth, with Mr. Jones, or as multijudes of minute particles of meteoric or cometic matter, traveling around the sun in very eccentric orbits, as is maintained by Mr.

(From a Letter in Boston Transcript.) My Iver Friend-You ask my opinion of bicycles in general, and for a few incidents from my own experience in particular. I do not know anything that compares with bicycle riding, as a healthful, invigorating and fascinating exer-cise; beauthful, because it brings into energetic but not excessive action so very many muscles; invigorating, on account of the fresh air, the rapid motion and the constant change of scene which are its accompaniments; tascinating, because-how shall I express it? or how can I invey to any one not a bicyclist any adequate a of the ever increasing delight to the rider of "the shent steed?" I have enjoyed the privilege of frequent horseback exercise, and have idered myself not a bad horseman; I have so had much practice with the oar, and alhough not a scientific oarsman, can, I think, derive as much enjoyment from that exercise as the most expert. But I believe bicycling to be far superior to the former, and in most respects superior to the latter-considered either as regards health or pleasure. The bicyle is a steed that can always be depended upon; one does not have to learn its gail, its tricks, every time a new steed is tried, nor incur an annual expense of $200 to $500 for board and shoeing. It can be used anywhere if the roads are moderately good, and it is nor necessary to reside near nor travel to a pond or stream or bay and here a share in a boat-house or mooring ground. Although I cannot call myself an experienced bicyclist, I have owned a machine nearly four months, have traveled about three hundred miles upon it, in short trips averaging about e gld miles each, and my pleasure, or rather my fascination, increases with every ride. I thought I knew how to ride three months are and would have felt almost insulted to have been told otherwise; but I now think that at that time I had scarcely learned the alphabet of bleycle riding. Every time I mount my bicycle I feel more and more at home,-now

stant watchtulivess and care and unceasing use of the handles. I now recall with much amusement my first experience with a bicycle upon the road. I in-tended to purchase a machine, but thought best first to hire one for a day, and practically test its boasted powers as a roadster. Having, as I thought, thoroughly mastered the art of riding by six or seven lessons in the hall, I began my first out-door experience, full of confidence in my own powers, and in my perfect control of my steed. After an hour's trial, I went home certainly a sadder and. I supposed, a wiser man. Perspiring, discouraged and disgusted, I pro-claimed to my household that the bleycle was a traud, a pretty plaything for the hall or the smooth, level road, but practically worthless for ordinary traveling. The slightest inclinaion had proved an insurmountable obstacle as r as concerned any upward movement, though I had experienced much less difficulty in my downward course, especially as my litred ma-chine had no brake. But I fancied that I had one consolation. I had not bought a machine, and my forethought in first hiring at an expense of $1.50 had saved me about sixty times that amount; for I had no idea of ever investing in a mere toy, for which I should be compelled o have my roads made to order and perfectly

I found, however, that my experience was not new; others had passed through the same A brother pedagogue informed me that he purhased a bleycle before having used one upon the road, and after his tirst out-door trial would have given it up forever if he had not already paid for the machine. I therefore resolved not o be discouraged so easily; and a second and third trial entirely changed my ideas and plans, and in less than a week I purchased my bicycle. Now no ordinacy hill troubles me in the least, and I can ascend such on my bicycle with scarcely any more exertion than if on foot Two facts in connection with bicycling are constant surprises to me-that a twenty or thirty-mile bicycle tide is less fatiguing than a four-mile walk, and that the chest and arms feel ratigue sooner than the legs and feet. The only explanation must be that the motion of the limbs in riding the bicycle is so natural, so hearly like walking, while the weight of the body is almost entirely taken from the feet; and thus the lower limbs have no opportunity; not the slightest excuse even, for weariness.

PROVIDENCE AND PROPHECY. - Rev. Joseph Cook, in a noble passage in his prejude, the other day, referred to the facts of Providence and of Prophecy: "What has Providence meant in carrying forward all the years of human his-tory according to a given plan? When I sat under Abraham's oak at Hebron, I opened the Scriptures, and read that from a chosen man should spring a chosen family; and that from a chosen family should spring a chosen race; and that from a chosen race should spring a founder of a new religious empire; and that out of a chosen race should thus come a chosen religion; and that this religion should embrace the earth As I sat three hours alone under Abraham's oak and read these statements concerning chosen man, family, nation and religion. I could not but be impressed, I will not say with the feelings of superstition, but certainly with those of awe and terror and faith and hope," "I set no dates. Prophecy is, perhaps, never adequately explained except by its fullfilment. I will not attack the devout scholars who have lately in a prophetic conference discussed these topics with great learning and earnestness. Much mischief, no doubt, may come from mysticism on the topic of prophecy; but more mischief may come from our coldness, from our indifference on this theme, and from our unwillingness to look upon the absolutely overawing tacts that phrophecy has been fulfilled; that as the past has been, so the future will be; and that as God has kept so he will continue to keep his word with us. same mysterious predictions which have been fulfilled to the letter for four thousand years fortell also the enswathing of the globe with a kingdom which now very nearly touches arms around it.

A CHANGE IN FUNERAL FASHIONS.-The gradual change in mortuary customs is a matter of occasional notice. For several years the floral tashion continued to increase until it reached a ellmax at Stewart's funeral. The expense of decorating the coffin, with other displays suitable to that occasion, was $10,000. This excess brought an immediate reaction, and since then flowers for mortuary purposes have almost fallen out of use. Another feature in funerals is the choice of evening as the time of service. after which the remains are taken away for interment. The escort to the grave on such occasions is limited to the smallest number that may be required. It would be well if another point could be brought into fashion,-that is, an abatement in display of mourning, which, indeed, were "a consummation devoutly to be wished." The present depression is seriously felt among the undertakers, who find it very difficult to make collections. Hence they are changing in their policy, and instead of encouraging expensive funerals they advise the contrary, unless in cases of known wealth. This arises from the above-mentioned difficulty in getting their pay whenever the bill reaches an excessive amount. Let a reduction in the cost of mourning follow, and the public will not be slow to acknowledge the relief .- [New York Correspondence Troy Times.
